

I HAD NO IDEA!

I thought all cremations were the same.

BEST FACILITY & EQUIPMENT. WE WELCOME COMPARISON. INSPECT US ANYTIME.

Our equipment is modern, meticulously maintained and available for inspection at any time. We have performed thousands of cremations and each is done individually. After cremation, the recoverable cremated remains are brought to this processing station where foreign matter is removed, collected and legally disposed of. The cremated remains, which are calcium and ash, are then prepared for processing and placement into a vessel, which can be either purchased or provided by you.

The weight of the cremated remains of an adult is approximately 6 to 8 lbs., depending on the size of the person, and requires a vessel approximately 200 cubic inches in capacity. Cremated remains are processed to a uniform, fine consistency. All areas where we perform this work are clean and meticulously maintained. After cremation and processing, the recoverable cremated remains are returned to the family.

Transfers from the place of death are personally handled by us with our own equipment. No jobbers. No middlemen. We transfer individuals to our funeral home individually.

Florida law requires embalming or refrigeration within 24 hours of the death. We have our own refrigeration facility which is safely located inside our funeral home. Our facilities are modern, well-maintained and clean. Again, we don't employ unknown third parties for any of these services.

NOT OUR CREMATORY

A picture is worth...

The actual location of where cremations occur and the manner in which they are conducted is in many ways, a secret. Many cremations occur in industrial-type buildings located far from the place of arrangements. Know the facts. See for yourself. Make informed decisions. It's your choice.

Interior?

If this is what the exterior looks like, what might you suppose the interior looks like?

Operational Standards?

Do you suppose there may be a difference in operational standards for various crematories?
